EXPLANATORY NOTES

Birth, death and marriage-rates are calculated on the estimated population at 31st December, 1963.

References to average or average rate are to the average rates for the corresponding quarters of the five years 1959-1963.

Births, stillbirths and deaths are, where necessary, corrected by transfer to usual place of residence, if in Scotland.

Report

This abridged life table is constructed from the estimated population in 1961, 1962 and 1963 and the total deaths registered in those years.

The column headed l_x shows the numbers who would survive to exact age x out of 10,000 born who were subject throughout their lives to the death probabilities indicated by the 1961-1963 death records. Column $^o e_x$ is the "expectation of life," that is the average future lifetime which would be lived by a person exactly x , if likewise subject to these death probabilities.

Meteorological Notes

Supplied by the Meteorological Office, Edinburgh

JANUARY 1964

The mean temperature, 40.0°F., was 2.5° above average. Although not as warm as 1957, it was 8.1°F. warmer than January 1963. The mildest periods were at the very beginning and very end of the month, and the highest temperature recorded was 57°F at Inverpolly (1st), Kinlochewe (1st and 3rd) and Gordon Castle (29th), while the warmest night temperature was 52°F. at Kinlochewe on 3rd. The coldest periods were around the 7th and again during the third week, with the lowest night minimum of 12°F. (20°F. of air frost), being recorded at Cannich on 17th and 18th. Day temperature never rose above 27°F at any time during the 16th at the same place. The lowest temperature recorded on thermometers on the grass was 4°F.

Sunshine amounts were above average in areas in the East and North but excesses were generally small, except in East Lothian where North Berwick recorded 20 hours and Dunbar 13 hours more than average. The sunniest places were Auchterhouse near Dundee and Elgin with 65 hours.

Only in very limited areas of Wester Ross and Ayrshire were totals about average. In parts of East Scotland amounts were only one quarter of average and in most other places about one half or slightly more. Although there have been drier Januaries in recent years, the aggregate of rainfall from the principal towns for December 1963 and January 1964 was the lowest for these two consecutive months since at least 1877. Daily falls of 2.09 inches at Dalness and 2.08 inches at Gobernuisgach were however recorded on 31st.

Gales were reported on 19 days, thunder on 3 days and fog on 26 days from one place or another. Snow was reported on 13 days and snow lying on 3 mornings. Aurora was seen on 4 nights.

FEBRUARY 1964

The mean temperature (39.9°F.) was 1.4°F. above average. The warmest periods occurred at the very beginning and during the last five days of the months. Coatbridge recorded the highest temperature from Scottish stations, 58°F. on 26th, while the warmest night temperature reported was 48°F. at Onich on the same date. The coldest nights were mainly 5th, 6th and during 18th-21st, with the lowest night minimum 11°F. (21 degrees of frost) at Cannich on 21st, Braemar on 20th and 21st and Bowhill (near Selkirk) on 21st. The lowest temperature recorded on thermometers on the grass was 3°F. (29 degrees of frost) at Cannich on 21st.

There were very varying contrasts in sunshine amounts from place to place. The largest deficits were reported from Northern areas and the Western Isles, while there were marked excesses in areas near the Caledonian Canal. Tiree (54 hours) had 20 hours less than average and Oban (82 hours) had 16 hours above average. The sunniest place was Elgin with 97 hours.

Rainfall was about average in very restricted areas of the North-east of the mainland and below average elsewhere. In most parts there was less than half the normal amount. At Edinburgh and Helensburgh, it was the driest February since 1934. Considering the three winter months December to February, the aggregate was the lowest for these months at Edinburgh since 1890/91, and for the principal towns as a whole since at least 1876/77. A daily fall of 1.69 inches occurred at Bridge of Dye on 23rd.

Gales were reported on 17 days, thunder on 4 days, fog on 23 days. Snow was reported from one place or another on 18 days and snow lying on 16 mornings. Aurora was seen on 10 nights.

March 1864

The mean temperature was 39.8°F., 1.8°F. below average. It was warmest around 1st/2nd, 8th/9th and 22nd-27th, and the highest temperature recorded was 56°F. at Benmore (Holy Loch) on the 9th. The warmest night temperature was 46°F. at Prestwick on 22nd. The coldest nights were generally around the 5th, 7th and 17th-20th and the lowest air temperature reported was 17°F. (15 degrees of air frost) at Happenden (Lanarkshire) and Dundee (Kirkcudbrightshire) on the 7th, while on the 18th temperature at Glenshee never rose above 31°F. during the day. On the grass, the lowest temperature reported was 10°F. at Glenmore on 12th.

It was a very dull month in all areas, excepting Northwestern districts. Craibstone only measured 33 hours of sunshine, 76 hours less than average, which represented its most sunless March since at least 1923. Other Eastern districts also reported very large deficits, but in contrast Stornoway (119 hours) had 11 hours in excess of average, and Poolewe was the sunniest place with 134 hours.

There were very marked contrasts in rainfall between places in the East and West of the country. Large regions in the East had amounts more than twice the March average, whilst places in Skye, West Inverness-shire and West Argyll had totals less than 25% of average. The 14th and 24th were particularly wet days, especially in East and Central areas. Several places reported falls of over two inches on these days and the most noteworthy were—Newtyle (Angus) 2.92 inches on 14th and Bieldside (Aberdeenshire) 2.67 inches on 24th.

Gales were reported on 14 days, fog on 26 days and thunder on 2 days. Snow or sleet was reported from one place or another on 21 days and snow lying on 12 days. Auroral displays were seen on 9 nights.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ELECTORS, 1964

This table has been compiled from returns furnished by Town Clerks and County Clerks, and shows the aggregate number of local government electors for Scotland, counties of cities, large and small burghs, landward areas and districts (district council areas ; where elections are held every 3 years). The figures indicate to what extent seats on Councils were contested and the percentage of the electorate who voted at the local elections held in May this year. For comparison percentages are also shown for the years 1961, 1962 and 1963.

A detailed analysis of the local government election results is published each year in the Registrar-General's Annual Report.

Meteorological Notes

APRIL, 1964

The mean temperature was 46.9°F., 1.2°F. above average. It was warmest during the last week and the highest temperature recorded was 67°F. at Kelso on 27th. The warmest night temperature was 53°F. at North Berwick on the same date. The coldest period occurred early in the month and overnight on 4th/5th air temperature fell to 21°F. (11 degrees of air frost), at Happendon, Carnwath, Blyth Bridge and it fell to the same temperature overnight 6th/7th at Achany (Lairg). On the 2nd, temperature only reached 39°F. at Sourhope.

There was a deficiency of sunshine in all areas and only at Gordon Castle and Tíree did measured amounts almost reach the average. In Eastern, North-Eastern districts, and in the Forth-Clyde valley many stations reported deficits of 30 to 38 hours. The largest deficit was 40 hours at Eskdalemuir in Dumfriesshire. The sunniest place was Campbeltown with 170 hours.

Rainfall was about 25 per cent. below average in Ayrshire and in Eastern Districts of Scotland excepting areas around the Forth and Tay, which like most other areas reported an excess. Some places along the Forth-Clyde valley and some in Wester Ross recorded totals which were 50 to 75 per cent. more than average. Glasgow (Springburn Park) had its wettest April since 1947 and Helensburgh and Tíree since 1949. The 13th, 14th and 19th were very wet days in most areas and on 14th, 1.55 inches of rain was measured at Ardtalnaig (Loch Tay).

Gales were reported on 8 days, fog on 14 days and thunder on 8 days. Snow or sleet was reported from one place or another on 9 days and snow lying on 2 days. Aurora was seen on 9 nights.

MAY, 1964

The mean temperature was 52.6°F., 1.9°F. above average. The warmest days were the 17th and during the 25th-30th. The highest temperature recorded was 77°F. at Barr on the 28th, and the warmest night temperature was 59°F. at Kilmarnock overnight 29th/30th. The lowest night temperature reported was 28°F. at Cairngorm (3575 ft. above sea level) overnight 13th/14th, and at lower levels 32°F. at Blackbridge overnight 1st/2nd and at Fyvie Castle overnight 13th/14th, while on 31st temperature did not rise above 45°F. at Cape Wrath, Auchterhouse (Angus) and Carnwath at any time during the day. The lowest temperature on thermometers over grass was 23°F. at Dounreay overnight 3rd/4th.

Poor sunshine amounts were reported from most places. Fortrose, Wick and Tíree all reported totals more than 60 hours below their May average. At Tíree it was the most sunless May since at least 1927 and at Fortrose, Nairn, Leuchars and St Andrews since 1944. The sunniest place was Strachan with 201 hours.

Over the Eastern side of the country, rainfall was below average, and near the coast about 50 per cent. of average, but elsewhere there was an excess. In North and North-West amounts were 150 per cent. and near the Caledonian Canal over 200 per cent. of average. Onich had its wettest May since at least 1924 and Glasdrum (Fort William) since 1929. The driest period of the month occurred from 23rd to 29th while the 5th was a particularly wet day in central Inverness-shire. Achnacarry (Spean Bridge) reported a fall of 2.84 inches on that date.

Gales were reported on 13 days, fog on 25 days and thunder on 14 days. Snow or sleet was reported on 6 days. Aurora was reported only on one night.

JUNE 1964

The mean temperature (54.9°F.) was 1.0°F. below average for June. The warmest period occurred from 23rd to 26th and the highest temperature recorded was 75°F. at Pitreavie, Turnhouse and Davidson's Mains, Edinburgh. This was the lowest absolute maximum temperature for Scotland as a whole since 1931. The warmest night temperature was 59°F. at Dundee Harbour on 27th. It was coldest during the first few days of the month and around 19th/20th. The lowest night temperature was 25°F. (7 degrees of air frost) at Cannich on 1st, while at Cairngorm (3,575 feet above Sea Level) 24°F. was recorded on the same date. Temperature on the 1st only rose to 46°F. during the day at Lerwick and Sourhope and at Cairngorm on 19th it only reached a maximum of 33°F. On the ground the lowest temperature reported was 16°F. (16 degrees of frost) on the 1st at Cannich.

Sunshine amounts varied considerably between the East and West of Scotland. There were excesses in many places in the East and deficits of 30 hours or more from places in the South-west. Dunbar was the sunniest place with 233 hours and Camps Reservoir in Lanarkshire the most sunless with 113 hours.

Despite the excess of sunshine in the East, there was also an excess of rainfall mainly due to heavy falls on one or two days. Near the mouth of the Tay amounts were about 175 per cent. of average. Deficits were reported from many places in the West. The 6th and 9th were wet days fairly generally and also the 26th in the North-west when 2.08 inches fell at Broadford (Skye).

Gales were reported on 6 days, fog on 10 days and thunder on 12 days. Snow or sleet was reported on 5 days and snow lying on 6 days at high level stations.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Birth, death and marriage-rates are calculated on the estimated population at 31st December, 1963.
References to average or average rate are to the average rates for the corresponding quarters of the five years 1959-1963.
Births, stillbirths and deaths are, where necessary, corrected by transfer to usual place of residence, if in Scotland.

Meteorological Notes

Supplied by the Meteorological Office, Edinburgh

JULY, 1964

The mean temperature (58.0°F.) was 0.9°F. below average. Despite frequent southwest winds, it was cool for July—the fifth successive one with mean temperature below average. The warmest days were the 18th-23rd and 30th. Temperature just failed to attain 80 degrees, 79 at Dyce Airport and at Hilton (Aberdeen) on the 30th being the highest reading. The coolest periods were the 3rd-8th. On the 6th the air minimum fell to 31 (one degree of frost) at Balmoral while thermometers exposed on short grass registered 24 at Achany and in the Cannich area of Inverness-shire on the 4th.

East Scotland had sun records above average in contrast to much cloudiness in the West, the greatest departures from average reaching 30 hours in places. Parts of East Scotland had their sunniest July since 1955. Dunbar with 227 hours was the sunniest station.

There were about ten dry days in East Scotland and amounts were small on other days. A large area had less than half the seasonal rainfall and the almost drought conditions gave concern in places over crops and water supplies. The West, in contrast, received more than the average, totals in parts of the Highlands approaching double the average. Kelso had its driest July since records began in 1888 and Edinburgh only one drier one (1913) this century. The 7th and 8th were the wettest days; on the 8th, 3.27 inches fell at Dalness, in Glen Etive.

Gales were reported on 14 days, early morning fog on 11 and thunder on 6—an unusually low frequency of thunder for July.

AUGUST, 1964

The mean temperature (56.7°F.) was 1.5°F. below average. It was warmest around 3rd to 5th and 11th to 13th with the highest temperature of 81°F. reported from Stonehaven on 3rd while Dyce and Dundee recorded 80°F. on the 3rd and 4th respectively. The temperature at Dunbar never fell below 64°F. overnight 4th/5th. The coldest period was around 20th and 21st. Overnight between these dates the air temperature at Eskdalemuir fell to 28°F. (4 degrees of air frost), the coldest August night at this station for at least 50 years. On the grass the lowest temperature reported was 22°F. at Dunning on 4th and 29th.

There were large deficits of sunshine in the North and North-east. Forres (104 hours), Gordon Castle (104 hours) and Wick (110 hours) had 35-40 hours less than their average. The West fared better with excesses in most places. Castle Douglas with 181 hours was the sunniest.

Rainfall was above the average, except for some areas in the South. In the North-east amounts were twice the average in some places. Wick had its wettest August since 1930. The driest periods were around the 10th to 13th and during the last few days of the month. The 17th and 18th were particularly wet days, especially in the North and North-east. Falls of over two inches on one or other of these days were reported from quite a number of stations. Auchindoune (Nairnshire) recorded 2.87 inches on the 18th.

Gales were reported on 11 days, morning fog on 27 days and thunder on 17 days. Snow fell on the Cairngorms on the 19th. Aurora was seen in the North on 31st.

SEPTEMBER, 1964

The mean temperature of 54.4°F. was 0.1°F. below average. The warmest period occurred during the early days of the month and the highest temperature recorded at any station was 77°F. at Stirling and Mertoun (near St. Boswells) on the 4th. The 20th, 21st and 30th were the coldest nights. The absolute minimum of 24°F. (8° of frost) was reported from Glentress (Peebles) and Carnwath overnight 20th/21st, and the temperature failed to exceed 46°F. at any time on the 11th at Lerwick. The warmest nights were around the 9th/10th and 22nd/23rd. At many places the temperature only fell to 58°F. during the first of these nights. The lowest temperature recorded over grass was 18°F. (14° of frost) at Lairg overnight 11th/12th.

Sunshine was below average in Northern areas and over the Western Isles, but most other parts reported an excess. Stornoway (75 hours) with a deficit of 36 hours, had its most sunless September since 1895. Marchmont (158 hours) and Dumfries (142 hours) in contrast had amounts 40 hours or more above their September average. The sunniest place was Dunbar with 166 hours.

Rainfall was above average in the West and also over the Northern and North-eastern part of the mainland. It was the wettest September at Wick (4.63 inches) since 1908 with the exception of 1950 (4.81 inches). The Shetlands and extreme Eastern districts South of Aberdeenshire had less than average amounts. It was driest around 1st to 4th and 29th/30th. The wettest days generally were around 8th/10th and 21st/22nd. A fall of 2.33 inches was recorded at Dalness (Glen Etive) on 22nd.

Gales were reported on 11 days, morning fog on 21 days and thunder on 7 days. Sleet was reported on 1 day and Aurora on 10 nights.

Preliminary Return for 1964

The population and vital statistics for the year 1964 are given in Tables IA and IIA on pages 5 to 9 of this Return. The main features of the tables are briefly indicated below.

Population. It is estimated that the population resident in Scotland at 30th June, 1964, was 5,206,400. The natural increase (excess of births over deaths) during the year ending 30th June, 1964, was 42,250 and the estimated net migration loss was 40,600, of which it is estimated 24,000 was to other parts of the United Kingdom and 16,600 abroad.

Births. There were 104,355 live births in Scotland in 1964, 1,664 more than in 1963. It is the highest number in any year since 1947. The birth-rate was 20·0 per 1,000, 0·3 above the 1963 rate and 0·4 above the average. Male births numbered 53,696 and female 50,659, being equivalent to 1,060 male births per 1,000 females.

Stillbirths numbered 1,900, 97 fewer than in 1963, and the rate of 17·9 per 1,000 births (live and still) is the lowest ever recorded in Scotland.

Marriages. Marriages registered during the year numbered 40,255, 597 more than in 1963. The marriage-rate was 7·7 per 1,000, 0·1 above that in 1963 but 0·1 below the average. Ministers of religion solemnised 31,628 marriages, 31,524 of which were preceded by proclamation of banns or by publication of notice, and 104 were authorised by Sheriff's licence in accordance with the Marriage (Scotland) Act, 1939. 8,626 marriages were contracted in the offices of Authorised Registrars and 1 was registered on the authority of the Court of Session. Civil marriages comprised 21·4 per cent of the total marriages.

Deaths. There were 61,037 deaths from all causes, 4,484 fewer than in 1963 and 2,456 below the average. The death-rate was 11·7 per 1,000 compared with 12·6 in 1963 and the average of 12·2.

There were 2,508 deaths of infants aged under one year, giving a rate of 24·0 per 1,000 live births, the lowest rate ever recorded in Scotland. Of these deaths, 1,715 were under 4 weeks, giving a record low neonatal rate of 16·4. Perinatal deaths (stillbirths and infants under one week) numbered 3,414 and equal a rate of 32·1 per 1,000 (live and still).

Table IIA shows the total number of deaths registered in Scotland during 1964, classified by sex and cause and by age and cause.

A comparison of deaths by age-groups in 1964 and 1963 shows large decreases among those aged 55 and over, the greatest decrease being in age-group 75-84. The death-rate at ages under 45 was 1.8 per 1,000, 0.1 below that in 1963, and at ages 45 and over it was 30.6 compared with 32.8 in 1963.

Causes of Death. The number of deaths from the principal epidemic diseases* was 108, 287 fewer than in 1963, a death-rate of 2 per 100,000. The decrease was due mainly to influenzal deaths which numbered 74 compared with 356 in 1963. There were 21 deaths from meningococcal infections (16 in 1963), 9 from measles (17), 2 from whooping cough (5), 1 from typhoid fever (0), 1 from diphtheria (0) and 1 from scarlet fever (including streptococcal sore throat) (1).

There were no deaths from acute poliomyelitis either in 1963 or 1964.

Deaths from tuberculosis (all forms) showed a decrease from 495 in 1963 to 376 in 1964. The death-rate was 7 per 100,000, 3 below the average. 338 of the deaths were from respiratory tuberculosis, 131 fewer than in 1963 and the rate of 6 per 100,000 is 3 below the average. Non-respiratory tuberculosis deaths increased from 26 in 1963 to 38.

There were 11,784 cancer deaths, 64 more than in 1963 and 488 above the average. Deaths from cancer of the respiratory system accounted for 3,009 compared with 2,909 in 1963 and the average number of 2,650.

Deaths from heart diseases totalled 20,681, 1,522 fewer than in 1963. They accounted for 34 per cent of all deaths, the same percentage as in 1963.

There were 10,123 deaths from vascular lesions of the central nervous system compared with 9,937 in 1963, 337 from diabetes (573 in 1963) and 447 from ulcer of the stomach and duodenum (504).

Deaths from diseases of the respiratory system (other than tubercular, malignant and influenzal) numbered 4,964 compared with 6,646 in 1963. This substantial decrease accounted for a large part of the decrease in the total number of deaths, a decrease which was mainly in the first quarter of the year and due to the mild winter. Deaths from pneumonia (except of newborn) numbered 1,738 compared with 2,988 in 1963 and from bronchitis 2,667 compared with 3,052.

Deaths from diseases and accidents of pregnancy and childbirth fell from 39 in 1963 to 24. This represents a rate of 0.2 per 1,000 births (live and still).

Deaths from congenital malformations and diseases of early infancy numbered 2,030, 13 fewer than in 1963.

Deaths attributed to violence numbered 3,064, 49 more than in 1963. Of these, 425 were ascribed to suicide, 813 to road transport accidents, 1,190 to accidents in the home and 636 to other forms of violence. The numbers from these causes in 1963 were 445, 741, 1,212 and 617 respectively.

Details of deaths from accidents in the home and transport accidents by sex age and broad cause groups for the year 1964 are given in tables IIIA and IVA.

SCOTLAND

Estimated Total Population, Mid-1964, projected to Mid-1981 by sex and age.

Basis: Mid-1964 estimate of Total Population (including Scottish Armed Forces and Merchant Seamen at home and abroad, but excluding Forces stationed in Scotland who are not of Scottish domicile).

Assumptions:

Mortality: A steady decline of death-rates over the period to rather more than one-half of the rates recently experienced at ages under 45 and progressively less improvement at ages over 45.

Fertility: Births increasing from 104,000 in 1965 to 106,000 in 1970 to 111,000 in 1975 and to 114,000 in 1980. Male to female ratio 1.06.

Migration: An annual net loss of 33,000 in the first year, decreasing gradually to 20,000 in 1969-70 and to 10,000 in 1979-80. (Males and females in equal numbers).

Note: These assumptions relate to mid-1964 and are subject to revision in the light of changing trends and the effects on migration of Government policy and other factors.

Meteorological Notes

OCTOBER 1964

The mean temperature of 47.4°F. was 1.4 degrees below average. This being the fifth successive month when mean temperature did not reach the average. The warmest days occurred at the beginning of the month, and on 19th and 27th, with the highest temperature reported as 69°F. at Kinlochewe on 4th. During the night of 4th/5th temperature never fell below 55°F. at Mull of Galloway, Rhuvaal, Tiree and Isle of Rhum. The coldest nights were generally around 9th to 14th and 23rd to 25th and the lowest temperature recorded was 19°F. (13° of air frost) on 23rd/24th at Lowther Hill which is 2377 feet above sea level. Glenlivet and Cannich both recorded temperatures of 21°F. overnight 9th/10th. On the grass the lowest temperature was 14°F. at Achany (Lairg) on 9th/10th.

Sunshine amounts were above average in parts of North Scotland and along the Moray Firth coast, but most other places had deficits. Arbroath with 75 hours had the largest deficiency from average, namely 27 hours. The sunniest place was Banff with 105 hours.

Rainfall totals were less than half the seasonal average for most of Inverness and Central and Eastern Districts to just North of the Forth. Small deficits occurred in most other areas. It was the driest October at Braemar and Glenbranter since 1951. The 6th was a very wet day in all districts and the 10th, particularly wet in the south-east. A daily fall of 3.12 inches was recorded on the 6th at Glenafton Hospital in Ayrshire.

Gales were reported on 9 days, fog on 20 days and thunder on 8 days. Snow or sleet was reported on 9 days and snow lying on 4 mornings. Aurora was seen on 8 nights.

NOVEMBER 1964

The mean temperature was 43.4°F., 0.4°F. above average. The warmest days were 13th, and those during the period 18th to 25th, and the highest temperature recorded was 60°F. at Dundee, Inverlorn (Perth), Blairgowrie and Kelso all on the 24th. This was the warmest November day at Dundee since 1946. The warmest nights occurred during the same period, and at Tiree the temperature never fell below 53°F. during the night of 21st/22nd. It was coldest around 8th to 11th and 28th to 30th. The lowest air temperature was 15°F. (17° of frost) at Grentress (Peebles) on the 10th, and on the same date temperature never rose above 29°F. all day at Renfrew. The lowest temperature recorded on the ground was 7°F., also on the 10th, at Carnwath.

Sunshine amounts were above the average in East and South only. At Stonehaven with 82 hours, the excess was 25 hours, and in contrast Stornoway with 28 hours reported a deficit of 17 hours. The sunniest place was West Freugh with 83 hours.

Over the East of Scotland it was the third successive month with marked deficits of rainfall. It was the driest November since 1942 at Dundee and since at least 1946 at Dyce Airport. Except for areas in the North-west, most other districts also reported amounts below average, but in Wester Ross totals were about 150% their normal amount for November. The first ten days were dry in most places, but the 14th, 18th and 23rd were wet days. The 18th was particularly wet in the West and 2.35 inches was measured at Oakbank (Isle of Mull) on that day.

Gales were reported on 18 days, fog on 27 days and thunder on 10 days. Snow or sleet on 15 days and snow was reported as lying on 7 mornings. Aurora was seen on 8 nights.

DECEMBER 1964

The mean temperature was 37.7°F., 2.0°F. below average. The warmest spell was around 5th to 12th and the highest reported temperature was 56°F. at Gleneagles on 6th and at Dunbar and Edinburgh (Royal Observatory) on 11th. The coldest period was 25th to 28th, and the absolute minimum air temperature for the month was 4°F. (28° of frost) at Strachan on 26th. The lowest temperature recorded over grass was minus 2°F. (34 of frost) on the 26th at Achany (near Lairg). On the 25th, air temperature never exceeded 26°F. at any time during the day at Braemar, Dinnet and Glenshee.

Sunshine amounts were above average in most places, only a few places in the North returning deficits. The sunniest place was West Freugh in Wigtownshire with 63 hours. Paisley had its sunniest December since 1950.

The Eastern side of the country had less than average rainfall for the fourth successive month. The Western half of the mainland and the Islands to West and North reported excess amounts. In Shetland and in some central Border areas amounts were about twice the average. It was the wettest December at Lerwick Observatory since at least 1938 and at any station in Lerwick since at least 1911. The driest days were generally around 1st-4th and 16th-24th, while the 11th was a particularly wet day. The greatest daily fall reported was 2.87 inches at Ardverikie in Inverness-shire on 30th.

Gales were reported on 20 days, and on 2nd and 11th these were severe. In the Dounreay area a gust of 98 m.p.h. was recorded on 2nd and at Turnhouse a gust of 84 m.p.h. on the 11th. Fog was reported on 29 days, snow or sleet fell at one place or another on every day except the 20th and it was reported as lying on 20 mornings. Aurora was reported on only two nights. Thunder was reported on 11 days.
